

Defendants Testify They Never Assaulted Constable Van Aken

Morris Rand and George Cohen say they never struck Constable George R. Van Aken in testimony at trial this morning.

Jack Goldstein of Ellenville, who said he was in the Shamrock restaurant on the night of August 11, the night of the attack on Constable George R. Van Aken of Ellenville, was the first witness called when trial of the action against George and Peter Cohen and Morris Rand was resumed in County Court this morning.

Goldstein said he heard talk of some shooting up the street and went out. He met Van Aken walking towards the Schipp lunch wagon near the scene of the assault. He said he asked Van Aken what was wrong and the latter answered, "I got it." He asked, "Who gave it to you?" Van Aken replied, "I got it so fast I couldn't say."

Cross-examined by District Attorney Murray he said he thought it was before 12 o'clock when he had the conversation. Later, between one and two he delivered a message to Van Aken. He did not say from whom the message was, but testified that he received a telephone call from the Napanoch Country Club between one and two o'clock and after that went and saw Van Aken again.

Isadore Boxer, Leurenkill hotel keeper, testified that he was night watchman at the Napanoch Country Club and was on duty the night of August 11, and was on duty at the front gate to the property from 8 to nearly 12. He admitted Moe Rand and a girl about 8:30 or 9 o'clock. About 11:45 or a bit later he went off duty and went to the kitchen. He saw Rand there at that time and he was still there at 1:30. He asked by the district attorney, if he saw him (the district attorney) there that night, he said that he couldn't recall. He did not see Rand go out of the grounds between 11 and 12 o'clock. Boxer said that he lived near Rand and would like to help him "if he was not guilty."

Harry Levine of Ellenville arrived at the club about 10 o'clock the night of August 11. Saw Rand and a girl there. He last saw him some 10 or 15 minutes after the close of the floor show.

Rand Placed on Stand.

Morris (Moe) Rand, one of the defendants, was placed on the stand shortly before 11. He said that he was 29 years of age, has lived in Ellenville 17 or 18 years. His mother conducts a summer hotel about two miles from Ellenville. He was convicted of a liquor law violation during prohibition and sentence was suspended. The night of August 11 he went to the Napanoch Country Club, arriving there at 8 or 8:30. He remained through the floor show, stayed for dancing and went home about 2:30. He said that he never struck Van Aken, was not in the vicinity of Cohen's store that night, nor was he with the Cohens that night.

Cross-examined by District Attorney Murray Rand said that he first heard of the trouble with Van Aken on Saturday afternoon and first saw the Cohen's after the assault, on Monday night. He denied that he had been at Tamarack Lodge the night Van Aken seized two slot machines. He "thought there were" slot machines at the Country Club the night of August 11, but said that he did not put them there nor collect from them.

The District Attorney said, "Did you see me there that night?" Rand replied, "Yes." He asked, "Do you know what I would have done if I had been there and seen slot machines?" The witness said it would not have made any difference to him what he did. Rand said that he had never seen the Cohens at Tamarack Lodge, had never gone with Peter Cohen to Greenfield and had not been at the "Mickey Mouse" Club at Greenfield with the Cohens. He had not gone to the "Mickey Mouse" Club with Peter Cohen and said he would give the parties till three o'clock to produce a slot machine which he had placed there.

Rand testified that he had never had any talk with Van Aken about slot machines, that he did not see Mrs. Van Aken on August 12, the day after the assault, that he did not go to Van Aken's house on August 12, that he had had no conversation with Mrs. Van Aken and that he had never been to the Van Aken house.

Philip Slutsky, justice of the peace in the town of Wawarsing, said that he went to the Napanoch Country Club the evening of August 11, accompanied by a girl. He saw Moe Rand, who told the gatekeeper to let him go in. Moe later had an attendant procure a seat for them. They sat for the floor show, which was over, "probably around 12," and said an hour or more after for dancing. He saw Rand several times during the show and saw him when the show was over. Mr. Slutsky said that he had represented the defendants in the case when they were arraigned in justice's court at Ellenville on August 14.

Lewis Weintraub of Brooklyn, a brother of the defendant, Abraham Spitz, of Brooklyn, in the insurance business, of coming to Terrace Hill House, Ellenville, run by Cohen's father, on August 11. They arrived about 10:30, later went over to the casino and some time about 11 with several others went to the home of Cohen's Mrs. Ronda. Cohen testified that George Cohen came into the room shortly afterward and was there all the time.

Seeking to Prove Money Spent In Excess of Appropriations

Supervisors Hear Testimony of Deputy County Treasurer Dwight McKintee From Records of County Treasurer During 1931—Defense Attorney Flemming Points Out 1931 Highway Fund Was Never Overdrawn.

Deputy County Treasurer Dwight McKintee was the only witness called at the morning session before the Board of Supervisors, sitting to hear charges against County Superintendent of Highways James F. Loughran. Testimony was given from records in the office of the county treasurer, indicating the amounts of money appropriated on various road projects in the county, the time when the initial appropriation had been expended and how much money was spent following that time until additional appropriations were made to keep the total amount spent on each project during the year 1931. The purpose was to substantiate the charge that money had been spent in excess of appropriations.

Mr. Flemming objected to this line of proof as it had no bearing on the charges named in that it had been testified that at no time in 1931 had the County Highway Fund ever been overdrawn. His contention was that the various amounts named in the resolution of the board as estimated costs of various projects and the overdrawings of these segregated amounts as devoted to each project was not a violation on the part of Mr. Loughran. That the highway fund was appropriated by the Board of Supervisors for the purpose of building highways under the direction of Mr. Loughran and that by resolution of the board the County Superintendent of Highways had a right to issue warrants against the highway fund, duly signed by the chairman of the board and that in so signing warrants he was acting under authority of the board and carrying out an order of the board. Mr. Flemming said that the county superintendent was not the accounting officer of the county, he was authorized to build roads. He held that while the segregation of the highway fund into various project sums was interesting as a matter of record it had nothing to do with the county superintendent's duties. The testimony in regard to the segregation of the Highway Fund into project funds he asked to be stricken out. Some of the project funds he said had apparently been spent together with additional sums while others had been drawn to a less amount than appeared on the project books.

Mr. Ewig answered that the county superintendent was authorized to make certain recommendations of roads to be built together with estimates of the cost of the various projects. These recommendations had been acted on by the board and he held that specific appropriations had been made for each road by the board and that if there were specific appropriations to projects were exceeded then that was grounds for charges notwithstanding that the County Highway Fund had not been overdrawn as a whole. He said that Mr. Loughran had at times called attention to certain overdraws, even though he was not the accounting officer, to the board of supervisors.

Long "Lost Interview" Between Kaiser and Hale Now Published

Penney Store Opens 32nd Anniversary

In anticipation of the 32nd anniversary celebration of the founding of the J. C. Penney Department Stores, G. R. Castetter, manager of the local store, has announced that large shipments of spring merchandise have arrived and been placed ready for the opening of the event Saturday morning. The anniversary will continue for the remainder of this month.

Speaking of business conditions, Mr. Castetter remarked that the local store was enjoying the busiest spring season in its history, and basing his predictions on the increase in business during March he said that the store anticipated great activity during the remainder of April.

He stated that the anniversary event was planned months ahead, and consequently late rise in prices would not affect the articles on sale, which had been contracted for before the rise. When asked about the rise in prices to be expected in the future, Mr. Castetter said, "Yes, recovery does call for higher prices, but there can be no recovery if goods aren't sold, and the Penney Company has found the way to get goods sold is to keep them at prices people can afford."

Theft at High School.

The theft of a boy's zipper jacket from the locker room at the Kingston High School was reported to the police department this morning. It is said that the thief is known and unless the jacket is returned police action will follow.

Reckless Driving Charges Preferred

Thursday afternoon a car driven by Angelo Fiorino of 715 Broadway was in collision with one of the Ferraro buses driven by Edwin Wollerstein of R. F. D. 3, Saugerties, on Broadway at Van Denes street. The door at the driver's seat of the Fiorino car was crushed in and the steering board wrecked. Each driver arrested the other on charges of reckless driving, and this morning in police court both pleaded not guilty and the hearings were adjourned to April 25.

Following a collision between cars driven by Leslie Williams of Rifton and Harvey Thompson of Port Jervis, on Broadway at Newkirk avenue, Williams was arrested by Thompson, who charged Williams with reckless driving. This morning Thompson failed to appear to press the charge and Williams was discharged for lack of prosecution.

Editor's note: The Kaiser gave an indiscreet interview to an American newspaper man in 1908. The German foreign office, according to the story, blue penciled much of the dynamic. The expurgated version was announced for publication in the December 1908 Century Magazine. Before it appeared, however, the foreign office requested suppression, and sent a cruiser to New York to pick up the pages and consign them to Davy Jones' locker. When the crates containing the sheets failed to sink, they were fished out and the copies fed to the flames. The "lost interview" is now published for the first time.

By HOMER MCCOY
Boston, April 20 (AP)—What the Kaiser said to William Bayard Hale, journalist, that night back in 1908—an international mystery for a quarter of a century—was revealed today from the unexpurgated manuscript of the writer.

The famous "lost interview," which caused so many headaches and so much speculation, is presented in the May issue of the Atlantic monthly magazine by William Harlan Hale, son of the man to whom Emperor William II of Germany spoke so freely, and, as his country thought, so indiscreetly.

This is the gist of the views expressed by the Kaiser:
The inevitable world crisis was a clash between Japan and occidental nations; East and West must meet, and the West must conquer.

Great Britain was guilty of a sort of political miscegenation in allying herself with Japan.

War was necessary. War was Christian. The Bible was full of fighting. The greatest soldiers were Christians.

Theodore Roosevelt, then President of the United States, was his hero—the dominating, militaristic leader he hoped he himself was.

The course of history was largely determined, not by the clashing of social forces and economic trends, but by the deeds of great men and personalities.

Met on Imperial Yacht
Thus the Kaiser spoke. It was one evening in July, 1908, that he consented to the interview by Harlan, close friend of Theodore Roosevelt. The meeting was on the imperial yacht, Hohenzollern, at anchor in the fjord of Bergen.

In the Atlantic Monthly, Hale writes that the emperor voiced "the most amazingly indiscreet statements ever uttered by the head of a great nation."

The world situation was precarious at that time. The first-rate powers were in a state of balance—like a mixture of chemicals, ready to explode with the addition of some catalytic substance—a rash speech for example.

The Russo-Japanese War was three years past. Germany had come to a cross-roads and was a

Far East Troubles Now Heighten Arms Crises in Europe

Dramatic showdown on disarmament May 23 forecast in League circles—France may insist on investigating Germany.

Geneva, April 20 (AP)—League of Nations circles forecast today a dramatic showdown on disarmament on May 23.

That is the date when representatives of the nations in the world disarmament conference will return to Geneva in full session to attempt to catch and pull together the flying strings of the many-sided problem of arms control.

There are even unconfirmed rumors that France may insist upon an investigation of German armament before consenting to negotiate any sort of a disarmament treaty.

But the differences of France, Germany and Great Britain form but one section of the problem as a whole.

Today the tendency was seen in Geneva to link what one official called the "disputed" disarmament situation with developments in the Far East growing out of the newly stated Japanese policy that western powers must keep hands off China.

Some progress was seen by well-informed sources here in the British "white paper" revelation at London Thursday that Germany had expressed a willingness to postpone reductions of armaments by other powers for five years.

This stand, taken in a previously unrevealed note to Great Britain, it was stated here, may reduce the apprehensions of France regarding Germany's arms—apprehensions which led her to state flatly that there could be no further hope of bilateral agreements with the Reich operating under a budget granting increases for military purposes.

Germany's insistence upon defense airplanes, also voiced in the note to Britain, was generally expected in Geneva.

Unexpected and disconcerting, but probably logical, was the opinion expressed concerning France's memorandum to London in which the French, assuming bilateral negotiations were "rendered in" by Germany's defense moves, demanded that a full disarmament conference resume discussions where they were left off in October, 1933.

In connection with the situation in the far east, many frankly said that even if France, Germany and Britain should succeed in reaching agreement on conflicting points at issue it is doubtful that a world convention with Japan and Russia among the signatories could be achieved.

Japan's attitude on a disarmament agreement continues negative. Russia is not expected to sign any sort of a convention if Japan withholds her signature.

A spokesman for the Soviet Union has asked, however, whether Europe would grant Russia freedom of armaments in the far east if Russia agreed to curtail her armaments on her western front.

International circles freely forecast Russia's entry into the League of Nations and believed Russia would be willing to participate in collective security, provided the system applied to the far east as well as to Europe.

SCATTER TACKS TO GIVE CARS TIRE TROUBLE.

Some one with a misdirected sense of humor is scattering nails and tacks on the Central Bus Terminal parking grounds on Railroad avenue, and as a result several cars there have been filled with tacks. Who ever is doing the job is careful to place tacks point up on the ground so that a tire will not fail to pick them up. This is a most dangerous practice and the one doing it is liable to a fine of $50 under the provisions of the criminal code. Several car drivers have reported to the police that they have found their tires filled with sharp tacks. The great danger lies in the fact that there is liable to be a blow-out of the tire while driving, causing an accident.

Treasury Receipts.
Washington, April 20 (AP)—The position of the treasury on April 18 was: Receipts $148,965,326.65; expenditures $168,873,974.78; balance $4,474,979,565.85; customs receipts for the month $12,194,833.52. Receipts for the fiscal year (since July 1) $2,430,179,952.75; expenditures $2,600,489,549.84 (including $3,116,222,172.33 for emergency relief); excess of expenditures $2,170,610,467.09; gold assets $7,745,744,435.25.

Mayor Heiselman Explains General City Law to Boards

Mayor Heiselman has written the following letter to all of the city boards and departments. The letter, which is self explanatory, follows:

Several inquiries recently have been made as to the legal right of elective and appointive city officials to enter into contracts with the city for work information and guidance in carrying out the provisions of the general city law.

City officers not to be interested in contracts. No member of the common council of any city shall, during the period for which he was elected, be capable of holding under the appointment or election of the common council any office the emoluments of which are paid from the city treasury, or paid by fees or compensation directed to be paid by any act or ordinance of the common council, nor shall the mayor or any alderman, school commissioner or other public officer of any city be directly or indirectly interested either as principal, surety or otherwise, in any contract, the expense or consideration whereof is payable out of the city treasury, but this section shall not affect the right to any fees or emoluments belonging to any office.

An officer of any city who violates any provision of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and on conviction thereof his office shall be vacant.

The attorney general has interpreted this statute as prohibiting the sale to the city of any services or supplies by any agency in which any public officer is connected as owner, officer, stockholder, agent or employee. I have requested an opinion from the corporation counsel, which I give below:

"Taking cognizance of the foregoing, it is my opinion that the common council, the various city boards and departments and the public officials of the City of Kingston should not in any way or to any degree, no matter how slight, promote any contract in behalf of the city with any public officer, member of a board or of a commission of the City of Kingston, notwithstanding the fact that the party contracted with is a party to the contract, or a member, stockholder or party interested in a firm or corporation, which is a party to such a contract, which requires that funds be paid from the city treasury. Anyone aiding and abetting such a contract is instigating the commission of a crime and is sanctioning illegal official action. The class of contracts referred to above are illegal even though the public official involved receives no compensation from his official connections with the city."

A person cannot serve on a city board or in any other official capacity and furnish the city, directly or indirectly, with services or supplies. Will you please be governed accordingly.

Very truly yours,

C. J. HEISELMAN,
Mayor.

Home-Towners Strong For John Dillinger

Petition in Circulation Which Asks Amnesty For Man Who Didn't Get An "Even Break"—Not Vicious, Friends Say.

Chicago, April 20 (AP)—John Dillinger may be poison to society in general, but in his home town of Mooresville, Ind., he's just a modern Robin Hood on a spree.

Down in Mooresville John Roe was circulating a petition requesting governor Paul V. McNutt to grant amnesty to the desperado whose wooden gun fight March 5 from the Crown Point, Ind., jail left a trail of blood and political repercussions that have shocked the nation.

Many of Dillinger's home-town acquaintances are reported to have signed the petition which alleges that America's public enemy No. 1 didn't get a square deal when he was convicted and sentenced to prison back in 1934 for robbing a grocer.

Dillinger is not the hold, bad desperado he has been pictured, the amnesty petition says.

"He has never," it says, "manifested a vicious, revengeful or a bloodthirsty disposition" and adds that the plan to quit bothering him would not only prevent bloodshed in his capture, but would give the state of Indiana something to be proud of by the "generous helping hand she had extended to her prodigal son."

Old John Dillinger, St. father of the here today and gone tomorrow fugitive, was little short of elated when he heard that the home town folks were sticking by his errand son. His idea about it was that John would make a good policeman, if he surrendered and was permitted to rejoin society.

N. Y. Legislature Votes To Spend $22,300,000 For Highway Work

Work Will Be Started When Federal Government Grants That Amount of Highway Aid to the State—Fearon Presses His Fight for a Further $17,000,000 Appropriation To Repair Roads Wrecked By Frost.

Albany, N. Y., April 20 (AP)—The New York legislature voted today to spend $22,300,000 for highway construction this year when and if the Federal government grants that amount of highway aid to the state.

The Assembly voted unanimously for the appropriation bill and sent it to Governor Lehman for his signature. The Senate passed it last night.

At the same time Senator George R. Fearon, Republican minority leader, pressed his fight for a further $17,000,000 appropriation to repair highways that have been wrecked by frost.

The state originally planned to spend $8,000,000 for highway repair. Governor Lehman, informed that frost has damaged hundreds of miles of highway, asked the legislature to increase this to $11,000,000.

Fearon said he would refuse to give his support to the continuation of the three cent gasoline tax unless the repair fund is increased to his figure. If this tax is defeated, the gas tax automatically drops back to two cents, with loss of $12,000,000 to $15,000,000 in state revenue.

Highway engineers reported many main roads in New York state have literally gone to pieces within the last two or three weeks due to frost swells after a heavy winter. Concrete roads have been heaved out of line.

The $22,300,000 in Federal aid for New York highways is enough to permit the construction of 400 miles of new roads. Governor Lehman asked the legislature yesterday to appropriate this amount to make the state eligible for its share of the $400,000,000 highway fund being considered by Congress.

This is the same amount New York received in 1933, with which 400 miles of road were built.

Captain Arthur W. Brandt, highway commissioner, said among the projects with which the state is ready to proceed provided the fund is made available are:

1—The Chapel Pond cutoff, to save motorists 12 miles going into the Central Adirondacks.

2—Completion of the Port Jervis-Hancock highway along the Delaware river, a trunk route into New York city.

3—Completion of the Alexander-Canawarous and Genesee-Livingston highway sections, part of U. S. Route 20, a main route across the state between Buffalo and Albany.

4—Numerous rebuilding projects on trunk and secondary routes, road widening, straightening and cross-section elimination, as well as considerable street work.

The highway division informed Governor Lehman that besides this fund, $11,000,000 would be needed to repair hundreds of miles of road broken up by frost this spring. The state originally planned to spend $2,000,000. At the governor's request the bill carrying the increase has been introduced.

NO TRACE IS FOUND SO FAR OF YOUNG SYRACUSE STUDENT

Troy, N. Y., April 20 (AP)—Not a trace of John L. Leland, young Syracuse University student, has been found since he disappeared on March 28 after an automobile accident in which a girl companion was killed.

Hundreds of tips and suggestions have reached the home of the 21-year-old collegian's uncle, F. J. Leyerle, police of the capital district and state troopers. None has brought information regarding Leland.

The Hudson and Mohawk rivers were drizzled for miles on the chance he may have ended his life. Rivermen say a body comes to the surface in 20 days.

A second girl in the automobile was severely injured and the second youth in the machine was only slightly hurt.

Money for "Worthy" Causes.
Geneva, N. Y., April 20 (AP)—A flood of requests for money for "worthy" causes continued today in the home of Mrs. Harriet High Eddy, 83, who inherited $200,000 from a reclusive cousin. Mrs. Eddy remained silent on her plans, but did reveal she is dumping the requests into a waste basket as fast as they arrive. Her son, William H. Eddy of the Chase National Bank, New York city, is handling details of the inheritance for his mother. She received the estate of Kate J. Tingle Pike, who died March 10 in her diaphanous home at Owatonna, Minn.

Y. M. C. A. Drive Reaches $7,552

The Y. M. C. A. financial campaign to get $15,000 passed the half-way mark last night, when workers reported $7,552 toward the goal. Enthusiasm is picking up as the campaign gains headway and much good natured rivalry is apparent among the various teams, each seeking to bring in larger totals than the others.

E. Frank Flanagan's team has the edge on the others at present with a total of $224; but the teams of William Finch and Samuel Peyer are close to the leader, each having passed the $200 mark with subscriptions. Monday's winners are reported at the meeting Tuesday evening were Gerald Bush, O. Lawatch and Walter May. Division honors went to Manager Stan Winne and Co-manager William Martin.

For tonight's meeting Chairman Harry Flemming has asked that 100 per cent attendance, reports and pep on hand to bring the campaign as near realization as possible.

Taft NEW YORK

Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER
WASHINGTON—The "brains" of what sometimes is referred to as the "veteran's lobby" are ready to close up shop for the remainder of the present Congress and either play golf or go fishing.
Substantially everything for which they have fought is "in the bag." Their attitude is aptly expressed in the opening sentence of the special bulletin issued by the national legislative committee of the American Legion after President Roosevelt's veto had been overridden:
"Over the top—with our objectives taken!"
Three points of the Legion's four-point program in the main have been translated into law.
Former service-connected disability compensation to world war veterans has been restored. The 29,000 "presumptive" cases have been restored to the rolls at 75 per cent of their old payments, except for those in which the government can show disability was incurred before or after service. Hospitalization for needy disabled veterans also is provided.

Bonus Issue Dormant
All references to immediate payment of adjusted service certificates (the bonus) which has passed the house and now is pending in the senate are dismissed summarily.
They are quick to point out that the American Legion is on record as opposed to this proposition. As far as the national legislative committee is concerned its interest in the proposition rests at that point.

The American Legion has spoken out on this question. They say:
"However, that doesn't mean that the government are duty bound to go out and suppress the bonus openly."
Sincerely expressed opinions are not the business with which the veterans' cause has met thus far will be a long way toward dampening the ardor and enthusiasm for payment of the bonus at this time.

'Point No. 4' Shelved
A matter of fact there seems to be no particular urge on the part of some spokesmen for the veterans to push for enactment of Point No. 4 of the American Legion program.

This is the proposal that "in no event shall widows and dependent children of deceased war veterans be without government protection."
Senator Sawyer of Oregon, recognized spokesman for veterans in the senate, purposely omitted offering this point along with the other three. He and other veteran supporters frankly were afraid of it. Point No. 4, more than any other in the program, is credited with having done most to stir up the tremendous opposition the veterans encountered in their efforts to liberalize the economy act.
If the leaders have their way, Point No. 4, as well as other legislation affecting veterans, will be pigeon-holed, at least for the time being.

County Legion Meeting Was Well Attended

Woodstock, April 19.—At the county meeting of the American Legion, held Wednesday night in Firemen's Hall, Woodstock, the roll call revealed representation of all the Posts in the county except that of Phoenixia.

The meeting was called to order and everyone stood at attention as Jack Feeley bore the colors to the front. The preamble to the constitution was read and the meeting proceeded with its business.

The most significant motion was one proposal that the Legion radio broadcast dealing with its legislative program be put on the air in advance of other news disseminating agencies in order that the Legion's own interpretation of its aims and purposes might be put before the public before antagonistic associations have opportunity to distort or misconstrue them, as it is felt has been the case in many instances.

The fourth point in its program is soon to be brought up, dealing with widows and orphans of the veteran and it is felt that on this point particularly the public will be in sympathy with Legion aims if the proposal be correctly interpreted.

After other matters were disposed of the business meeting was adjourned and preparations for the arrival of the women from the Auxiliaries were commenced. A social hour followed.

2,500 Children Get Tuberculin Test Here

312 Grade and Parochial Children Show Positive Reaction, While Number in High School is 200—One Active Case Revealed—New Evening Clinic.

The tuberculin test survey in the schools of Kingston has been completed. About 2,500 children in the grade and parochial schools have been tested. Of these 312 were positive reactors. In addition 750 high school students have also been tested, with more than 200 showing a positive reaction. According to the program, the latter were examined and fluoroscoped at the Ulster County Tuberculosis Hospital, resulting in the discovery of one active case of tuberculosis and several other cases of arrested disease or suspicious symptoms.

For the grade schools the program was more extensive, since it undertook the examination not only of the pupils, but of the parents and other members of the household as well. In this way the infection of the child can usually be traced to an adult with whom the child has been in contact at some time or other. About 60 per cent of the parents have cooperated splendidly and have reported at the hospital for examination and consultation. Most of these in this way have been relieved of their uncertainty, because an explanation has been found for the positive reaction of their children.

For the benefit of the remaining 40 per cent—among them many fathers who have not been examined—the staff of the hospital has decided to hold an additional clinic every Thursday night from 7:15 to 8:15 o'clock. The regular clinics are as usual, Monday and Wednesday from 9 to 12 a. m. and Saturday from 9 to 12 and from 1 to 5 p. m. It is hoped that the parents who are anxious for the health and the welfare of their children will take advantage of this new evening clinic.

Blow Snake or Adder Is Scrappy; Not Dangerous

On the Michigan pine plains is commonly found one of the most interesting reptiles in the United States, one with a habit which no other snake in this country (and few in the world) possesses. This snake, says Our Dumb Animals, is the commonly called blow snake or puff adder or, more rarely, called the spreading adder or hog-nosed snake.

It is a thick-bodied snake and is rather short, never measuring much more than two feet in length. When approached by an enemy it assumes the attitude of the deadly cobra of India and from the power of hissing sharply or spitting it gets its name blow snake or puff adder. It flattens its head until it is almost twice as wide and less than half as thick as normal. It will strike savagely but never quite hits the mark. It is entirely harmless, despite the stories of its poison breath. If it finds that it cannot bluff you by striking, and if you tap it lightly with a stick or with your boot, it will slowly turn over upon its back and relax with gaping jaws. It is to all appearances a dead reptile. Should you walk away it will twist its head about and, if all is quiet, it will quickly come to life and crawl to a place of safety. If you pick it up and turn it over it will repeat the "dying" process over and over a half dozen times.

Royal Clocks Valuable;

There Are Many of Them Windsor castle, says the Montreal Herald, has 500 clocks. Buckingham palace has more than 150. The inventory of the Windsor castle clocks alone fills two volumes in the Lord Chamberlain's office. The most valuable of them all is a small one that Henry VIII gave to Anne Boleyn on their wedding day. The weights are engraved with lovers' knots. It is said to be worth $50,000. Another valuable royal timepiece is a Louis XIV Buhl clock in the Van Dyck room at Windsor. It is said to be worth $25,000. There is also an eighteenth century clock that requires winding only once a year. In the footmen's room at Windsor is a curious Act of Parliament clock. These timepieces sprang into existence when Pitt taxed watches, with the result that poor people ceased to carry them. Publicans came to their aid by installing Act of Parliament clocks in their windows. These clocks were of black-painted wood, with gilt numerals, and without glass over the dial.

The king's clock, however, is painted white. The largest of all the royal clocks is a grandfather, which stands in the grand corridor at Buckingham palace. It is 9 feet 10 inches in height.

Roll Call in Congress

There is no requirement that the roll be called at the beginning of each day's session of congress. It is called at the opening of the term to ascertain whether all the states are represented, and a roll call is directed by the speaker of the house or the president of the senate before an action which requires a two-thirds vote. For the rest of the time, a roll call may be had whenever any member cares to raise the point of no quorum. If a substantial minority supports his request. It requires 35 minutes to call the roll in the house; in the senate, considerably less time. When a part of one of the bodies desires to delay proceedings for one reason or another, frequent and repeated roll calls help to accomplish the purpose.

Etymology of Sardinia

The name sardinia originally was given to a variety of fish found in the Mediterranean near the island of Sardinia, but the commercial usage now includes several varieties, the French sardines being the young of the pilchard, and the American, young herring.

LANGUAGES OF 22 NATIONS HEARD IN FRENCH TOWN

Chalette-En-Gatinais, France, (AP).—The Tower of Babel was tongue-tied in comparison to this little town of 5,500 inhabitants, 50 miles from Paris.

There are 2,796 foreigners residing here, and the town, all told, speaks 22 languages. Market day, therefore, is complicated. According to the latest census the allies include 1,113 Poles, 918 Russians, 256 Czechs, 184 Turks, 54 Italians, 37 Croats, 29 Portuguese, 17 Serbians, 16 Belgians, 7 Lithuanians, 6 Germans, 5 Greeks, 4 Bulgarians, 3 Englishmen, 2 Spaniards, 3 Algerians, 3 Swiss, 2 Finns, 2 Georgians, 1 Hungarian, 1 Austrian and, last but not least, an American.

Depression? Not in Madagascar! Antananarivo, Madagascar, (AP).—This island, official statistics show, is one of the few spots on earth unouched by the world economic crisis. In 1933 exports of coffee grew from 12,000 to 15,000 tons and manufactures also in marine, sugar and textiles.

Sea Gives Up World War Miss. Osnabrueck, Germany, (AP).—Exports from this city recently went to the island of Sylt in the North Frisian group to dismantle an English war mine washed up from the North Sea after floating around for probably 20 years.

County Clerk Wants Record Books Repaired

Board of Supervisors Asked to Consider Repair of a Number of Record Books in Office of County Clerk.

County Clerk James Simpson appeared before the Board of Supervisors Thursday afternoon and read a communication asking the board to consider the repair of a number of record books in his office which he said were sadly in need of repair. Many of them are old record books which contain records to be retained for all time such as deed books, court proceedings, etc., and he asked the board to consider the immediate repair of these books by some competent person or firm.

The job he said was not a small one, it would cost probably $5,000 or $6,000. He asked that it be taken up by the board and referred to the proper committee for action.

Chairman Markle said the matter would be given attention at the regular meeting of the board.

Mr. Simpson said that under the law the County Clerk was charged with the safe keeping and the proper care of records in the office and he believed that some immediate action should be taken if the records were to be preserved.

that modern plumbing is wasted as well as old-fashioned

FEWER FAILURES

One of the most impressive records of the plumbing industry in the United States is the fact that the number of failures in plumbing has decreased steadily over the years.

The reason for this is the fact that the plumbing industry has adopted modern methods of plumbing, which have resulted in fewer failures.

Some of the reasons for the decrease in failures are the use of better materials, the use of better workmanship, and the use of better inspection methods.

The result of these improvements is that the plumbing industry is now able to provide a much higher quality of service than it was in the past.

This is a great benefit to the public, as it means that they can rely on the plumbing industry to provide a high quality of service.

The plumbing industry is a vital part of our society, and it is important that we continue to support it and ensure that it is able to provide the highest quality of service.

One way to do this is by ensuring that the plumbing industry is able to keep up with the latest developments in the field.

This can be done by providing the industry with the necessary training and resources, and by ensuring that the industry is able to stay up to date on the latest regulations and standards.

By doing this, we can ensure that the plumbing industry is able to provide the highest quality of service to the public, and that it is able to continue to grow and develop.

This is a goal that we should all strive to achieve, as it is essential for the well-being of our society.

Let us all work together to ensure that the plumbing industry is able to provide the highest quality of service to the public, and that it is able to continue to grow and develop.

Talks to parents

Facing Facts

By BROOKS PETERS CHURCH

Bob grew up on a farm. From boyhood he was surrounded by nature in his freest form.

He was known to him at a time when most children they were simply abstract terms.

Fortunately his parents treated the events as they occurred quite as a matter of course.

There was no one at hand to comment on them either pleasantly or otherwise.

Such things took place and that was all there was to it.

Had his parents either over-emphasized the events by an undue display of emotion, or made light of them with jokes and laughter, the child would have been in danger either of a morbid outlook on life as an unpleasant tragedy, or of a callous indifference to its occurrences.

Instead he was taught the inevitability of natural laws. He learned that birth caused pain, but at the same time was brought to realize the joy of the mother in her child.

He came to accept the fact that every living thing must get its sustenance at the expense of another, and that sooner or later death comes to all.

But each one of these facts entered his consciousness without marking his emotional life for all time.

It is the adult's own emotional reaction which affects children, not the events which occur in the world around them.

Granted a firm and unshaken faith in their parents' acceptance of circumstances, they too will face life with courage and cheer.

Many of the over-sensitive adults of today were children whose outlook was warped in youth by their parents' lack of emotional control.

CANCER DUE TO IRRITATION

Notwithstanding the fact that the cause of cancer is unknown there has been more actual knowledge acquired during the past twenty-five years than during all the time before.

With this knowledge it is now possible for physicians and surgeons to prevent and cure a great many cases of cancer every year.

The fact that cancer can be cured in the early stages by the knife, radium and the X-ray is now so well known that both patients and physicians are ever on the alert to watch any sore that doesn't heal, any lump that doesn't disappear, or any blood that may be vomited or passed by way of the intestine.

These are the early signs of cancer. What about the prevention of cancer?

Cancer always appears on the same kind of tissue—surface tissue. This may be the surface of the skin, the surface of the lining of the mouth, liver, intestine or other organ.

The reason that cancer starts on a surface is believed to be due to the fact that surface tissue can be irritated easily and it is generally agreed that it is irritation of a surface tissue in an individual with a "tendency" to cancer that causes the cancer.

And if you think for a minute you will see that cancer doesn't start in bone, tendon, muscle or other supporting tissue but in the soft moist gland tissues that pour out juices either for digestive purposes or to prevent friction. The lumps or growth on other forms of tissues are not cancers, nor are they called cancer, but are called various kinds of tumors according to the kind of tissue in which they are found—lipoma in fat tissue, fibroma or fibroid in fibrous tissue, myoma in muscle tissue.

Now the points to remember are that while the cause of cancer is unknown, in early stages it can be cured; that irritation can cause it; so irritation must be prevented; that the physician of today is morally bound to recognize cancer and to make the tests of the tissue himself or refer the patient to the clinic or laboratory where the specimens are examined; that the physician cannot go anything about cancer even among his own patients if he is not consulted.

Card Party

Wednesday evening, April 25, at 8:15 o'clock, a card party will be given at the Holy Cross parish house under the auspices of the Friends of the Holy Cross Club.

WOODSTOCK FIRE TRUCK AND AIDES BECOME MIRE

Woodstock, April 19.—Wednesday a brush fire on Judson Smith's farm got out of hand and a call was sent in for the fire engine.

Mr. Doremus and L. V. Simpkins made immediate response. After the fire was out an attempt was made to back the fire truck into the D. A. Drake drive in order to turn it about for the run back to the engine house.

Although Joseph Hunt has had men and trucks working on this section of the road for some time, a place in very bad condition after the frost went out, there was still work to be done on it in spots. Unfortunately the fire apparatus found one of these spots got out of the road and mired.

It became evident after some labor that assistance would be necessary. If the engine was to be lifted from the mud, word went out a tractor approached its big red brother, looked on, made a noble attempt, and then joined the fire engine in mud and immobility.

WOODSTOCK FIRE TRUCK AND AIDES BECOME MIRE

The situation looked serious since Mr. Hillson, the fire warden from Phoenicia, had that day given out several permits in the neighborhood and as the grass was very dry and the wind fresh any fire was easily got beyond control and the services of the mired engine very likely needed. Thereupon the big town snow plow was summoned, but it joined the other two machines and settled in the mud.

Just how the three machines were eventually extricated was not learned but that they were, was attested by the fact that the big red engine was to be seen in its accustomed place last evening.

Sound motion pictures have just been introduced into Ethiopia, the first showing, which included an animated American cartoon, taking place in the presence of the emperor and his court.

Tomorrow, the trial gets under way.

Searing Memorial Service Was Held

A congregation which taxed the capacity of Ascension Church, West Park, attended the memorial service for the late former rector, the Rev. Richard C. Searing, M. A., B. D., last Sunday morning. Mrs. Searing, the widow, had come up from New York city with a number of friends and relatives and friends from Saratoga Springs, Johnstown, Walton and other places, as well as those from West Park. Eoanous and nearby places were in attendance. Four girls from the Holy Trinity Church choir of Highland joined the Ascension Church choir for the occasion. Robert Smith of Kingston, brother of the organist, sang beautifully an appropriate solo. In a brief address the rector, the Rev. S. Glover Dunseath, M. A., B. D., said: "My heart has been deeply moved by the gracious, ready, wholehearted response which has been made by all our people to the plans for the holding of this memorial service for that faithful soldier of Jesus Christ, the late former rector of this parish, the Rev. Richard C. Searing, who served here for so many years."

The rector invited all present to partake of a luncheon which had been prepared by the members of the Guild and was served in the parish house. Many found it necessary to return to their homes after greeting Mrs. Searing. More than 80 luncheons were served.

Hurley P.-T. A. Held Meeting. Hurley, April 19.—The Hurley Parent-Teacher Association held a meeting at the Hurley School on Friday, April 13, with Mrs. R. Smith, the president, presiding. At the business session of the meeting a nominating committee consisting of Mrs. Snyder and Mrs. Hutton, was appointed for the purpose of electing officers for the coming year. It was decided to serve milk to the children who remain at school for lunch in place of the usual soup and cocoa for the remainder of the year. On Friday evening, April 13, the third in a series of benefit card parties for the purpose of carrying on the work of the P.-T. A. was held at the home of Mrs. John Brink. It was a great success, both socially and financially.

WASHINGTON HEADLINERS

No. 11—Yankee Lawyer Cummings Finds Uncle Sam Exactin' "Client"

This is the eleventh article in a series depicting personalities in Washington.

By FRANK J. WELLER

Washington, D.C. The tall, lean Yankee lawyer with more than 100,000 letters, zipped with pale blue eyes across the desk and observed that in the business of being attorney general for the United States there are a great many things to be done.

There was a ready and frank reasonableness in the tone of Homer S. Cummings carefully thought-out words.

"A new life can be breathed into the department of justice," he said, "just as it can be breathed into that living organism which is sometimes also described as the 'national machinery of government'."

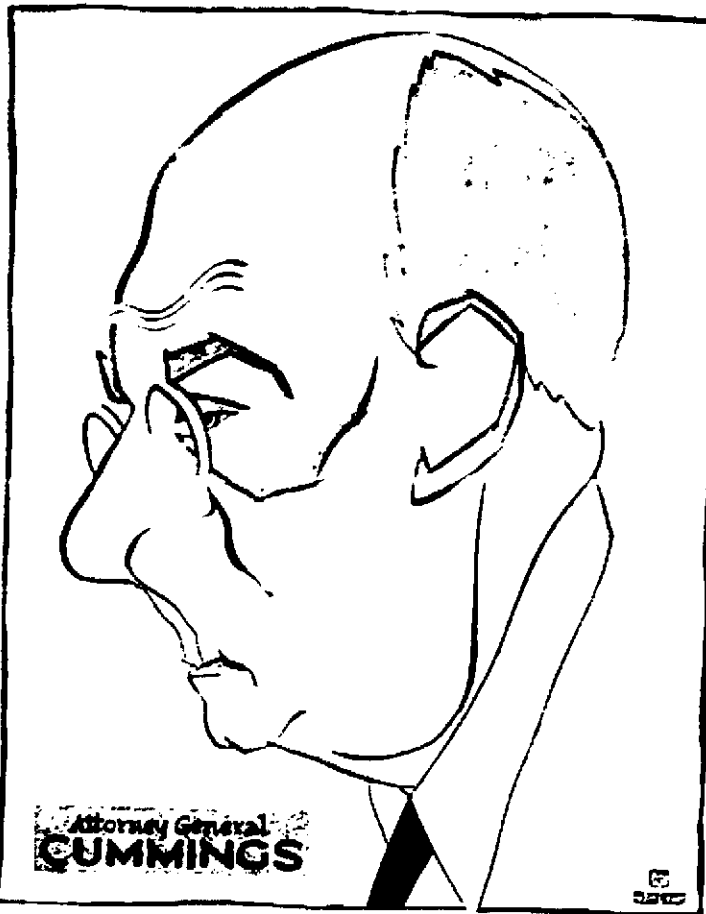

"Machine Gun" Kelly and a long list of other imprisoned racketeers found just how quickly the department could snap into action.

With Humor And Eloquence

That, however, is not the whole picture. In the cloistered cabinets of state, other knotty problems of procedure and precedent are arising from efforts to obtain economic recovery. The job of investigating their constitutionality is among the "great many things to be done."

Cummings has an harassed and exacting client in nervous old Uncle Sam, but the 62-year-old descendant of that brave laddie, Cummin, who fought Robert Bruce, handles him with ready humor and flashes of eloquence.

Cummings stands six-foot-four in his old shoes. That's not a wise crack, either, for the general has the rare habit of taking off his glasses to read and putting on old shoes to dress up.

The eye-glasses he wears only to correct distant vision. The foot gear adds to the fact that he is distressed by new shoes and therefore does no sense in wearing them when he is out to enjoy himself.

Likes Literature

Cummings keeps up a great amount of reading. Les Miserables is his favorite book. Pericles the figure in history he admires most and Otello the play he likes best. For outdoor sport he chooses golf.

Cummings is known to the public as a most successful attorney. But he is regarded also as an expert criminologist and psychologist. Pursuing these are much more than hobbies to him.

He took the sheepskin from Yale three decades ago and hung up his diploma as a lawyer in Stamford, Conn. where the instant bent for justice started him being made while he had just turned 30.

It was during the 20 years as a state attorney that he made legal history. After he was stamped by the Washington committee report as "a noble example of the proper discharge of the prosecutor's duty."

Protect The Innocent

A man had been shot down on the streets of Stamford in the midst of early evening crowds. The assailant was described by eye-witnesses, even to detail of his attire. Soon a negro doorman carrying a revolver with one empty chamber was apprehended, identified and influenced to sign a "confession."

To the surprise of everyone, President Cummings, rising in criminal court to press the state's charges, asked for a nolle prosequi instead of a conviction.

His record of the "great many things to be done" before justice is noted out showed error of vision and identification and a ballistics proof of innocence.

One judge said of it: "Nothing of its kind can excel the cogency of that assemblage of facts." The guilty cannot escape such an official: no more can the innocent suffer through him.

In a now widely-quoted footnote Cummings wrote of the affair: "It goes without saying that it is just as important for a state's attorney to use the great power of his office to protect the innocent as to convict the guilty."

Next—Senator Robinson of Indiana.

Annual Holstein Club Banquet

Over a hundred persons gathered at the Grange Hall in New Paltz Wednesday evening to enjoy the fourth annual banquet of the Ulster County Holstein Club. Millard Davis of Kerhonkson acted as toastmaster in his usual good form, and helped make the occasion one of the most interesting and enjoyable in the history of the club.

A real milking contest was one of the amusing features. Cornucopia Queen only gave water but caused lots of excitement. To everyone's surprise, the Rev. John Kirkson, pastor of the Shawangunk Church, proved to be the champion milker.

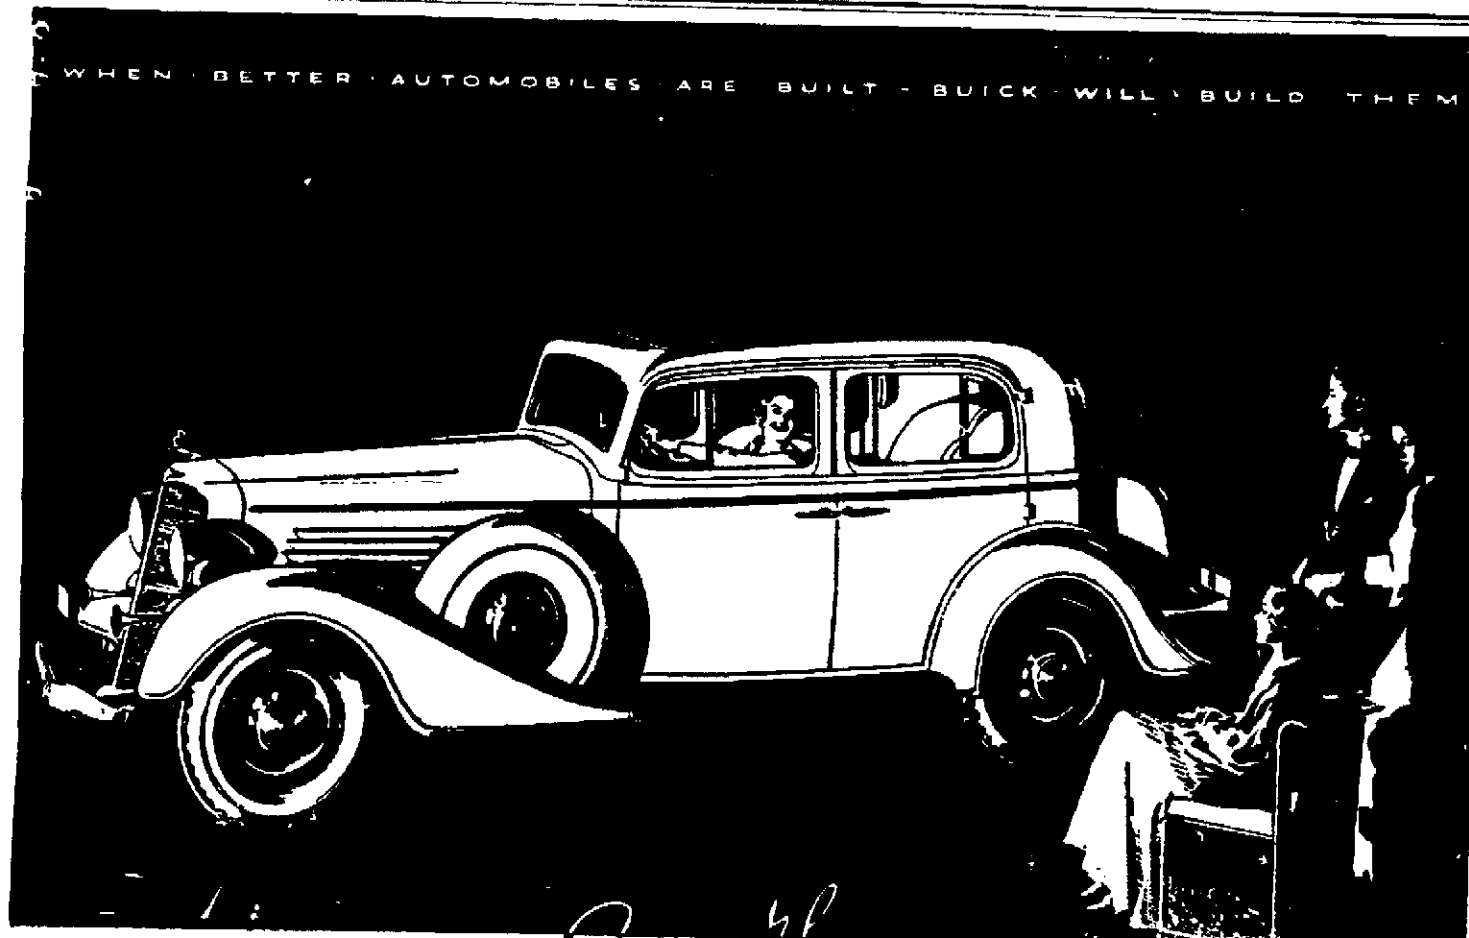

Prof. S. J. Brownell was the chief speaker of the evening and painted a very optimistic picture of the dairying in New York state and the future of the Holstein breed. Pratt Boice of Kingston, county chairman of the 4-H Club directors, awarded special prizes to twelve 4-H Club members, who have won recognition for their excellent work. Jesse Deyo of New Paltz, president of the club, gave an excellent report on the activities of the club and C. L. Allen, chairman of the Farm Bureau dairy committee, gave a brief report on the proposed dairy production control program of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

The singing led by Orson Beatty and Dr. Harold Clark with Danny Rittner at the piano added to the festive occasion. Judging from the comments afterward everybody had a very enjoyable time. A rising vote of appreciation was given to the members of the Grange service and hospitality committee, who provided the excellent dinner.

Encore

Body by Fisher

Buick's 1934 reception strikingly resembles the insistent demand of an audience for an encore from a favorite star. Led by an army of Buick owners, all the public is far surpassing previous enthusiasm for Buick. Everywhere, the talk about Buick is turning into a flood of buying action.

When you come to take your first ride in a Buick, you will find—in which ever type and size you prefer to buy—stunning new beauty and luxury. There is also new engineering progress... a broader incorporation of fine performance, thorough-going dependability and safety... greater ease and convenience. These desirable advantages are expressed in the new Knee-Action gliding ride as only Buick gives it, in automatic starting and other new features, in finer smoothness and quiet, with greater power.

Buick builds this year's cars in the size you want to buy—110-, 128-, and 136-inch wheelbase. All have the same high excellence, the same flashing performance, the same famous dependability, the same advanced features.

Kingston: "Melody in Spring" Charles Fugliese, Mary Boland, Lanny Ross and Ann Southern are the main cogs in the wheel of this well musical comedy that has all those essentials necessary for an entertaining picture. It seems that Charles Fugliese is a wealthy fellow making his money from the manufacture of dog biscuits. He has a lovely daughter who has made the error of falling in love with a crooner against the wishes of her father. Of course, the old boy doesn't stand a chance against the romantic singer, and he finally has to give up and let love take its course. Features of this show are the singing of Lanny Ross, the grand comedy of Charles Fugliese and Mary Boland, and the capable direction and dramatic skill of the cast.

Orpheum: "Beloved" and "Circle Canyon" The struggle to fame of a composer is the theme song of the new attraction, one of the best of the current pictures. It tells the story of an immigrant boy who comes to America after the revolution in his own country, with the dream of some day writing a wonderful symphony. Failure marks every step, the Civil War, marriage and poverty all hinder his advance. But he triumphs in the final scene, an old man who dies in peace because he sees his cherished dream come true. With John Boles singing and Gloria Stuart's beauty, this show leaves little to be desired. "Circle Canyon" gives Buddy Roosevelt a chance to play the hero in a western knock-them-down and drag-them-out affair.

Broadway: "Temptations Revue" on the stage, and "No More Women" on the screen. Headed by Charles King of "Broadway Melody" fame, the revue this week is the second feature vaudeville attraction to come to the Broadway theatre. A cast of 50 people and a chorus of well-trained girls along with Howard Emerson's Columbia Broadcasting Orchestra, Betty Kean, Helen Arnold, Anita and Emanuel, and a number of other talented players completes the program. "No More Women" is the latest of the Edmund Lowe-Victor McLaglen co-starring pictures, and it has the same rowdy appeal as all the others. This time they are a couple of deep sea divers, always fighting each other over dames. Both are in love with the

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS AND SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—William Powell is a deal of a home body. He likes to stay some day including a swimming pool, a four-car garage, a theater, tennis courts, and two recreation rooms.

All are incorporated in the home Powell is building where Hobart Bosworth's residence formerly stood. The star originally intended to remodel the Bosworth dwelling, but little by little the old place came down.

One of the two recreation rooms is an extension of the theater. The other contains one of his pet innovations. The room faces the patio, and the bar is so placed that it can serve both indoors and out.

Powell admits that he is building with an eye to resale value.

Not Planning Retirement

Which should tie up, but doesn't, with his remark that his decision to free-lance is based on a desire to retain his own market value as a star "for at least a couple of years more."

He has no schemes for retiring to the proverbial life of ease after that time. He tried the luxury of idleness, once, for four months on the Riviera, and it cured him. As a same girl, and this causes considerable misunderstanding. Full of raw humor and action, this show will appeal to excitement lovers. Sally Blane, Minna Gombell and Christian Rub are also members of the cast.

Tomorrow

Kingston: "Wonder Bar." Extravagant settings, grand music, a stage full of pretty girls, some swell dance numbers plus Al Jolson, Dolores Del Rio, Ricardo Cortez, Kay Francis, Dick Powell, Hugh Herbert, Ruth Donnelly, Hal LeRoy and Guy Kibbee, all conspire to make this one of the bigger and better musical comedy offerings now being shown.

The action centers at the Wonder Bar in Paris, with Al Jolson the head man. He is in love with a dancer in his show, and this same dancer is in love with a gigolo. Before the thing is straightened out, there is a stabbing, a planned elopement, and when it is all over, Mr. Jolson still fails to win the girl he adores. The plot, however, is the smallest part of the show. It's the beautifully staged dances, the choruses, the songs, the gaiety and comedy that has been woven into the action. And of course there is only one Al Jolson with his mannerisms and his own peculiar style of getting his songs over to his audience. Although the cast is filled with big names, all of them, with the exception of Jolson, seem to be more or less in roles which give them small opportunity to display their dramatic talent.

Opera Tickets on Sale.
Connelly, April 19.—School children who plan to attend Humperdinck's opera, "Hansel and Gretel," at the Kingston High School auditorium on Friday, April 27, at 5:45 p. m., are asked to please bring coupon and fee to the grade school teacher, Miss Van Steenberg, on or before Friday, April 20. Coupons must be exchanged for tickets. Adult and patron's tickets are for sale at Connelly School or from Mrs. A. H. Windram, Port Ewen.

Hates 'Suave' And 'Polished'—"Suave" and "polished" are two adjectives Powell professionally dislikes. Producers always sought parts for him that would fit them. Grateful to "Phil Vance," the detective he so often has portrayed, he still prefers not to keep on playing that "rudite stuffed-shirt." The film he does next, he considers different. His grudge isn't against detectives as such. It is against characters who are "mere thumbnail sketches without a past."

As a free-lancer, he hopes to have producers seeking Powell for a part rather than have them, with his contract salary in mind, frantically seeking "a part for Powell."

Already signed for a half dozen films or more, he apparently is being "sought."

OF ALL the kind people I know of, none is more kind than Nimble Heels, the jumping mouse. But a funny thing about very kind people is that often they get over fear easier and more quickly than some who are supposed to be very much braver. It was so with Nimble Heels. Now, wouldn't you suppose that after being almost killed by a great giant who he never had seen before, Nimble Heels would have been frightened almost to death, and remained so? At first he was frightened. Of course, he would have been a funny fellow if he hadn't been.

Catskill Glee Club At Baptist Church

The Baruch Class of the Wurts Baptist Church brings to the privilege of bringing to the music of the Catskill Glee Club. It is anxious that all know the character of the music to be given. This group will be here Monday evening in the auditorium of the church under the direction of Roland E. Heermance of Saugerties. He needs no introduction to a Kingston audience. Preparations are being made to entertain an audience that will tax the capacity of the church. The beauty of the auditorium lends itself very well to forming a fine background for the presentation of this concert. The program presented demonstrates the character of the music this club is able to present.

BLACK HILLS SEE BIG INDIAN POWWOW

Greatest Gathering of Tribes in Eighty Years.

Washington.—More than 400 Indians, representing some 2000 fellow tribesmen in five states, have returned to native spears, and huts and prairie homes after one of the largest Indian powwows held in this country since 1851. In Rapid City, S. D., at the foot of the Black Hills, gold-faceted tribal delegates from the North and South Dakotas, Wyoming, Montana and Nebraska listened for four days while officials of the office of Indian affairs explained a new plan for consolidation of their lands and disposition of personal property.

The delegates will report back to their tribes and meet for a second conference this year "before the snow dies." Among the tribes represented at the Rapid City powwow, the first of a series of such gatherings being held throughout the Indian lands of the West, were the Sioux, Blackfeet, Shoshones, Rocky Boys, Crows, Arapahoes, Cheyennes, Winnebagoes, Yanktons, Turtle Mountain Chippewas, Fort Bretholds, Sissetons, and Wahpetons.

Favorite Hunting Ground.
"The Black Hills region forms an appropriate theater for a big Indian conference, because this 'island of mountains' in the Great Plains was once a favorite hunting ground of the Red Men," says a bulletin from the National Geographic society. "All of western South Dakota was at one time reserved for the Sioux Indians, whose 25,000 living members comprised the largest group represented at the recent powwow."

"What Indian tribe possessed this choice game country before the white man came to America is unknown; but since the opening of the West several distinct tribes have occupied the region, each in turn forced out by a stronger group. In all cases these newcomers have appeared from the east and almost without exception the older residents have moved farther west."

"The Crow Indians are believed to have been in possession of the Black Hills near the beginning of the Eighteenth century. Later the Poncas entered the eastern portion of the highlands, but, finding them occupied, turned back eastward. The Cheyennes were the next successful invaders from the east, and held the territory when Lewis and Clark passed in 1804."

"Next came the Sioux, the last of the Red Men to hold this desirable region before the advent of the whites. The first 'written' history of the country is a pictorial chronicle of the Sioux on prepared skins. It records that the famous chief, Standing Bull, led a party of warriors to the hills about the time of the signing of the American Declaration of Independence, and took back to his Plains home a little pine tree, a type of tree never seen before by his immediate tribe."

"It is a matter of tradition that the Cheyennes fought stubbornly to retain their upland hunting grounds, but that the Sioux finally drove them out, the decisive battle being fought at Battle Mountain near the present town of Hot Springs."

Explored by U. S. Army.
"The first real exploration of the Black Hills was carried out by officers of the United States army in 1857 and 1858. After these expeditions rumors of the existence of gold there spread throughout the world, and a horde of would-be prospectors insisted that they be permitted to seek their fortunes in the new El Dorado."

"In 1874 the secretary of war sent an expedition to the region and its mineralogists found gold. When this became known, prospectors entered in spite of the best efforts of the United States army. After a year or two of unsuccessful attempts to eject these white interlopers, the federal government found it necessary to take over the hills from the Indians."

"The national acquisition of this land was not easy. Not only were the Black Hills a happy hunting ground, but certain areas were regarded as sacred by the Sioux. There were places reserved for the Great Spirit, where no Indian dared hunt. To them came the medicine men to practice rites which should avert tribal disaster. It was in these hills that Sitting Bull communed with the spirits before he incited the Sioux to resist Crook and Custer in the memorable campaign which cost the latter officer his life."

"The region was thrown open for general settlement by President Grant in 1876, just 55 years ago. A turbulent frontier life developed in the mining camps that sprang up."

"The Black Hills, which really should be called 'mountains' because some of their peaks are over 7,000 feet above sea level, are not a part of the Rockies, but they may be looked upon as little brothers. Both probably were formed at the same time."

"Today the most noted landmark of the Black Hills is Rushmore mountain, across the face of which is being carved gigantic figures of four great builders of the American nation: Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln, and Roosevelt, with an inscription to be determined through a national contest."

"Within the Black Hills region are the Wind Cave National park, the Fossil Cycad, and the Jewel Cave National monument, the Harney and Black Hills National forests, and the Custer State park."

Classis of Ulster Met Last Tuesday

Official Report

Classis of Ulster, Particular Synod of New York, met on Tuesday, April 17, at the Reformed Church at Kingston. Delegates were present from 24 churches. Prayer was read by the retiring president, the Rev. R. A. Ritchie, of Gardiner. The Rev. R. H. Beaumont of Ulster became president, and the Rev. J. S. Howard of High Falls became temporary clerk. The report on the state of Religion in the Classis was made by the Rev. Mr. Ritchie, who also reported on Church Bible Schools and Young People's Work. The former report showed a decrease in church families, but a gain in membership of over 100. The Sunday School enrollment is smaller by a few. The contributions for benevolent purposes, exceeded those of last year by a good percentage. The reports made by the board's agents reflected the urgency of their calls, but also a fine determination to press on in their work for better conditions at home and abroad. Shortly the individual church reports evidenced a deeper fellowship in the churches, a finer courage, harder work, more loyal support, better attendance, and a spirit of advance; many of them indicating definite plans for 1934-35.

The matters pertinent to the Woodstock and Katsbaan churches were discussed freely and referred back to the respective consistory. The pastoral relation between the Rev. Mr. Ritchie and the Gardiner church was dissolved, effective June 1. The Rev. Eugene C. Duryee was received by certificate from the South Classis of Bergen, N. J., and a call by the Blue Mountain Church upon Mr. Duryee to be its pastor, was approved by Classis and accepted by the Rev. Mr. Duryee. Installation service is to be held on May 6 in the Blue Mountain Church. The fuller program for this event is to be published later. The Rev. Gerrit

J. W. Schlegel of New Fair was designated as the construction supervisor of the Gardiner church. The Rev. Arthur E. Oakes, of the Plattekill-High Woods church, was designated as the new agent for the Board of Publication and Bible School Work. The Rev. Henry S. Van Woert of Rosbury was re-elected as the Classis' representative on the Board of Superintendents of the New Brunswick, N. J. Theological Seminary, for the term of five years. The Rev. John B. Steketee was re-elected as stated clerk and treasurer of Classis for the term of three years.

People Rest Case In Warwaring Assault Trial In County Court

Defense Attorney Asks Mrs. Lawrence to Testify if She Committed the Crime of Perjury. When she is recalled—she resumed this morning.

The case was a dramatic moment in the trial of the Warwaring assault case when the trial in county court was adjourned at 2 o'clock.

The trial resumed at 2 o'clock. The defense attorney, Mr. Lawrence, asked Mrs. Lawrence to testify if she committed the crime of perjury. When she is recalled—she resumed this morning.

Mrs. Lawrence was asked whether at the time she stepped out upon the balcony of her home and looked down upon the scene of the assault, which took place directly in front of the house, she saw anyone else besides Van Aken and McNally, who she recognized. She answered yes.

Asked who else did you see that you recognized, she answered George Cohen. She added that she had seen George Cohen go from near the Van Aken car to the car that had parked in the rear of Van Aken's car.

Cross-examined by Mr. Prior, Mrs. Lawrence said that she was making this positive identification partly because she had refreshed her memory by looking at the transcript of her testimony before the grand jury and partly because she thought she had given such testimony under direct examination at the morning session of court.

She said that she had talked with Assistant District Attorney Haver since her first appearance on the stand and that he had said he was surprised at her testimony that morning; that she had talked with Mr. Haver about the grand jury testimony after she had said that she was confused about what she had said on the stand. The crowded court room was tense as the defense counsel asked the witness, "Did you commit the crime of perjury this morning?" Mrs. Lawrence said, "I understand that I am back here on the stand because my testimony this morning was confused and I am trying to make it clear."

Mr. Prior continued questioning the witness regarding the difference between her testimony in the afternoon and what she had given in the morning and asked whether while she was in the district attorney's office someone had not told her that unless she identified Cohen now she might be prosecuted for perjury. The witness finally replied, "What difference does it make?" Mr. Prior said, "Is that the answer you want to give me?" The witness indicated it was, whereupon Mr. Prior closed his cross-examination with the remark, "I am satisfied."

Mr. Haver read from the testimony given before the grand jury a statement to the effect that the witness had identified George Cohen as the man who was cursing and kicking Van Aken.

McNally Called to Stand
William McNally, who said he was now with the U. S. Forestry Service in Illinois, and who accompanied Van Aken the night he made the trip to Greenfield and seized two slot machines and who was in the Van Aken car at the time of the assault, was the next witness for the prosecution. Questioned by Mr. Murray he said that he did not have a revolver in his possession at any time the night of the assault.

McNally told of the trip to Greenfield, the return to Ellenville and the parking of the car on Main street to await the coming of Justice Bonomi. He told of the arrival of the second car, which stopped back of the Van Aken car and of a bunch of men getting out, coming up to the Van Aken car and starting to holler. He identified the three defendants as being in the party. He did not see anyone strike Van Aken while he was there, but said he saw Peter Cohen raise his arm and that "George Cohen pulled on me." He said that he saw Jack Goldstein standing in the street. McNally got out of the car and went to call Officer Groppe, whom he had seen go into the lunch wagon nearby.

Under cross-examination by Mr. Prior the witness said that he had stated that there were "at least six" people in the party. He placed the time of the assault at about 12:30, saying that he had heard the town clock strike midnight shortly before it took place. McNally then told of his search for Justice Bonomi in various places in Ellenville. Asked where he left Van Aken while he was trying to find the judge, he caused considerable laughter when he replied, "I believe I left him in a couple of places." He explained his remark by stating that the Van Aken car had left the scene of the assault and parked at two different places while they were awaiting Bonomi's arrival.

was around 2:24 when he saw Van Aken. Ellenville.
Cross-examined by District Attorney Murray he said that he was not able to say definitely just where he was at 11:15, 11:20, 11:25 or 11:30. He did state that he saw Rand at least once during the time between 11:15 and 11:30. Mr. Murray read from Bonomi's testimony before the grand jury a question to the effect: "You would not be able to say that you saw Mrs. Rand between 11:15 and 11:30?" to which the answer was No.

Court adjourned at 2:30, the defense to resume its case at 10 o'clock this morning.

Long 'Lost Interview' Between Kaiser And Hale Now Published

He was carrying a naval case with Great Britain, a naval case with France.

The Agassiz conference, at which the Kaiser and Russia and Italy had opposed the fatherland in agreeing to recognize the priority of French interests in Morocco, had left her somewhat of an Ishmael among nations.

The German foreign office evidently believed that the Kaiser had spoken too freely.

The Hale interview was to appear in the Century Magazine, December, 1905. The German foreign office gave it a thorough editorial scrutiny removing most of the dynamite.

Then it was decided that the interview should be suppressed. The pages were yanked out, crated and stored in a warehouse.

The German foreign office stored the crates aboard and in mid-Atlantic tossed them overboard.

Pages Fed to Fish.

The crates declined to sink and the Bremen lowered boats and took them aboard again. Eight Imperial German officers, according to the story, stripped and went down into the engine room from which enlisted men temporarily were barred, and fed the printed pages to the fish.

Theodore Roosevelt was supposed to have had a copy of the interview, but it has not been located. During the World War, Hale was urged to use the article as anti-German propaganda, but declined.

In the Atlantic Monthly article, the original interview, before expurgation, is used. W. H. Hale found it after his father's death in 1924.

The Kaiser's first remarks concerned Theodore Roosevelt.

"What a man he is!" the emperor told Hale. "Mr. Roosevelt is an inspiring example of the force of personality."

William II then developed a thesis. "It isn't genius the world needs, nor brilliancy, nor profound learning, half so much as personality. The big things in the world are always done by just a man—one man—one strong personality."

"One of The Greatest."

Roosevelt, he declared, was "one of the greatest leaders of men the world has ever seen."

He referred to two American capitalists—John D. Rockefeller and Andrew Carnegie.

"I can understand," he told Hale, "why men like Mr. Rockefeller, with his peculiar methods of gathering money, should not have relished the President's attack on iniquitous trust methods."

Carnegie, the Kaiser continued, had once jokingly told him he would like to have Roosevelt and himself "in harness and have the reins for one day."

His reply, the emperor said, was: "I should esteem it a real honor to be harnessed up with Mr. Roosevelt, but I insist that we go tandem, and that Mr. Roosevelt lead."

The conversation then turned to war.

"In a world of practical facts," the Kaiser said, "we have to fight even for righteousness' sake. The Bible is full of fights—only good fights some of them were. It is a mistakes idea that Christianity has no countenance for war."

He contended that the sword should clear the way for the mission.

With the assertion that the world's greatest warriors had been Christians, the Kaiser turned to the Japanese.

"The trouble with them," he said, "is that they don't want any religion. They constitutionally are incapable of religion. They are utterly without sentiment—practical, cold, unempathetic."

Asiatic Situation
The Asiatic situation was the emperor's chief theme.

"Everybody knows what must come to pass between Asia and the west, the yellow race and the white," he said. "We are unworthy of our fathers if we are negligent of the sacred duty of preserving the civilization which they have achieved for us and the religion which God has given us."

He thought the Japanese had been over-estimated as fighters, they were too small in stature.

"We know this much about him (the Japanese), the Kaiser declared. 'He hates the white man worse than the white man hates the devil. The Japanese are devils, that's a simple fact. They are devils!'

It was fifteen years earlier that the Kaiser had painted his picture of 'The Yellow Peril.'

Consolidation of the east constituted the chief threat to occidental security, he said, adding that it was the particular duty of the white races to prevent Japan from "swallowing China."

China's territorial integrity and the "open door" principle guaranteed by several nations meant nothing, he contended, since Japan was signatory to all such treaties.

The Kaiser said a new treaty among white nations was necessary to preserve China's integrity, and Great Britain should not be a party to it.

"England a Traitor!"

"England is a traitor to the white man's cause," he asserted. "If that alliance of theirs with Japan is persisted in, I don't see how the British empire can be saved from dismemberment."

"When self-interest comes in at the door, sentimental patriotism flies out of the window."

The Anglo-Japanese alliance was terminated some years ago.

Australia and New Zealand had invited the American fleet to visit their shores as a warning to the home land that they had in the United States "a friend who understands the white man's duty better than the mother country seems to understand it," continued the Emperor.

And, he added, President Roosevelt had sent the fleet with that understanding.

The most logical combination of nations to act as "big brother" to China the Kaiser said, was that of the United States and Germany. He had discussed this matter with Roosevelt, he said, and Roosevelt had agreed.

"Some fine day the world will wake up and read a quiet little agreement between Germany and the United States declared that we guarantee Chinese sovereignty over Chinese territory." He declared the Emperor. "O-Ho! I wonder what my friends across the channel will say to that."

Here, Hale reports, the Kaiser guffawed and executed a dance step on the deck.

Religion was the next subject. Hale makes this comment: "Clearly he esteems himself a lord with spiritual as well as temporal responsibilities." The Kaiser expressed dislike for the Roman Catholic faith, on the ground that it "subordinated Jesus."

Next the Kaiser spoke heatedly of Anglo-German relations.

"What is England's grievance against Germany," he asked, and answered: "This sympathy, he said, was grounded in the British diplomatic policy of opposition to the dominant continental power."

Germany was that power, he declared, passing the British in things naval and military, cultural and economic.

William II concluded with a eulogy of the white race. His shoulders squared, his eyes flashed, writes Hale.

Future Belongs to Whites.

"The future belongs to the white race, never fear!" the emperor exclaimed. "It belongs to the Anglo-Saxons, the man who came from northern Europe—where you to whom America belongs came from—the home of the German."

"It belongs to the fair-skinned man, and it belongs to Christianity and to Protestantism. We are the only people who can save it."

"There is not power in other civilization or any other religion that can save humanity, and the future—belongs to us!"

In his Atlantic article Mr. Hale said:

"There were three versions of the interview. The first was a bundle of notes that Hale made of the emperor's words—the almost verbatim account of a trained reporter."

"The second was the article in its original form as it was submitted to the foreign office. The third consisted of what was left after the foreign office got through with it. It was the last that was acquired for publication in the Century. The first and second versions were locked away by Hale and were seen by no other living soul until after his death."

"Thus, while the real interview remained hidden and unknown, the harmless dilution of it came near creating an international crisis."

Mr. Hale said that in preparing it for publication he thought "it advisable for the sake of historical accuracy not to limit it to the expurgated form, but rather to draw upon the complete text," following the "original manuscript in Hale's handwriting."

Hale, a Woodstock Resident.

William Harlan Hale practically grew up in Woodstock, where he first became generally known to everyone in any way connected with the colony as the humorous, enthusiastic and pertinent editor of the spicy little journal, "The Hue and Cry."

That was when Hale was in his first or second year at Yale. Then came graduation, a trip to Europe, and his first book, "Challenge to Defeat," a book which took for its theme the effect of the post-war years and the depression upon the youth of America. Next Mr. Hale was made a member of the editorial staff of "Vanity Fair." Several of his articles have appeared in other quality magazines.

Cacao Bean Tells History To Kiwanis

Members of the Kiwanis Club saw and heard a talking picture Thursday noon at the Governor Clinton Hotel.

The picture, "The Gift of Montezuma," which proved to be the products derived from the cacao bean. Chief among these "gifts" was cocoa, chocolate products and the like.

Preceding the showing of the picture, Dr. Hoover offered a resolution, in the death of Dr. A. C. Gates, which was adopted by the club after the members had paid their last respects standing while the resolution was read.

A notice and invitation was given of the Zlonest meeting at the Jewish Community Center Sunday evening, at which time Dr. De Haas, prominent Zionist, will be the speaker.

Announcement was also made of the century of fashions, sponsored by the Whitworth Golf Club at the Municipal Auditorium next Friday evening.

Guests for the day were Clyde Winchell of Shokan, Kenneth F. Pugh of Hershner, Pa., and P. D. Morris of Schenectady.

The motion picture proved to be the history of the cacao bean from the time it was taken from the tree until it was turned out into the modern products, which are a part of every household.

ORIENTAL EFFECTS LEAD NEW STYLES

Line and Color Combinations
Are Copied.

There is enough and to spare for all existing whims of fashion. You can go the limit in practically any direction except a full skirt. You can put yards in the hem provided the waist and hips and thighs are fitted snugly.

The strongest tendency is toward the Orient, both in line and color and color combinations—beautiful in richness and blendency. One extremely practical note about such styles as the kimono-cut sleeves, slit-tailed coats and Japanese lines in general is that they can be so easily packed, pressed and carried about in suitcases or trunk.

The fish-fin trend, while excellent for exotic outfits wearable only a few times, will be followed by those who crave conspicuousness, but will be modified into a softer line with more grace and comfort to it.

We called these "wings" last time, but they have dropped further down now and so go into the "fin" class. A few still remain at the shoulders, particularly when using fur in the Schiaparelli manner, and even with the Heim touch, but on the whole the hips take the fish-rudders.

"WINDSWEEP" PRINT
By EMERIE NICHOLAS

The vogue for "windswept" effects is reflected in the newest prints. The pajamas shown here are made of a windswept print in cholla crape construction. This lovely print has every thing to recommend it. First of all its colors will not fade or run in washing and it is of such a sturdy weave there is no wear out to it. The generous cut of this attractive pajama costume gives the effect of the sweeping lines of a full skirt. Elbow length puff sleeves and a bodice closed with two bows of self fabric are interesting details. Pajamas of this type are comfortable for lounging and are adored by school girls for wear around the dormitory for fudge parties or for study hours—but pajamas are not being worn outside the home by smart women.

Velvet Predominates in Spring Style Showings

There was more velvet shown in the spring couturier collections in Paris than there has been previously.

Small velvet capes for evening in black and colors, were shown in many of the houses.

Vionnet particularly stressed velvet, showing not only capes, wraps, evening gowns and hostess gowns, but many charming velvet accessories.

Lelong showed three very beautiful long velvet evening wraps, a cape and two short wraps.

Worth made a stunning white mat velvet full length evening wrap with large sleeves, bagging at the elbow, which were slit from shoulder to elbow, with a tight cuff extending from elbow to wrist. This was made with a cowl neckline, with a blue fox posed very low in the back and coming loosely over the shoulder to the neckline. It was very stunning.

"Tag End" Dresses
New "tag end" dresses, designed along tailored lines with long skirts for the cocktail and dinner hours, add a novel note to the 1934 fashion displays.

They are designed to carry the wearer from late afternoon into the evening, when the tired business man doesn't want to dress.

FLASHES FROM PARIS

The "rattle" beret is new. Shallow crowns are preferred by smart clients.

Capes of organdie, set and other sheers are shown.

Yves Borel uses sequins for trimming.

Spreading fan-shaped trapes give the new lines to evening gowns.

Lovely prints dominate the collection.

Navy taffeta with white organdie capes or jackets is featured for evening.

Tortoise on Land, in Water
The diamond-back tortoise is as much at home on land as in the water. The only time it stays under water for very long is a stretch in during its period of hibernation. Then it burrows deep into the mud out of reach of the frost to sleep away the winter.

Boston Red Sox Come Back By Trimming Senators In Double

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

The Boston Red Sox, picking Patrons' Day, a strictly Bostonian holiday, as their starting point, already have begun to pay dividends upon owner Tom Yawkey's big investment in them.

After dropping two tough decisions to Washington's Senators, the Sox made it all up yesterday by trimming the 1933 league champions in both halves of the holiday double-header, 5 to 4 and 7 to 3. Julius Foltz, star of the morning contest with a ninth inning home run, after a pinch hit by "Shrimp" Dave Harris had tied the score for Washington in the seventh.

The afternoon drew 34,486 fans, the largest crowd since the rebuilding process began. They saw the Red Sox pound Ray Prim, Mark Filly and Ed Linke, for 13 hits, including a homer by Bill Cissell while Johnny Welch tossed in a five hit hurling job to make the victory sure.

The world champion Giants played the National League theme song for the day when they turned four hits, one a homer by Bill Terry, off Fidelity Phil Collins into a 2 to 0 victory over the Phillies. Bud Parmelee and Adolf Luque pitched five-hit ball.

Brooklyn and Boston provided one of the early-season oddities in a 1-1, seven inning tie. A thick fog, which rolled in to obscure the outfield, forced the umpires to call the game. Walter Beck of the Dodgers allowed only three hits. Pat Malone's five hit hurling plus some timely hitting against Paul Derringer gave the club their third straight triumph over Cincinnati by a 4 to 1 count.

The Pittsburgh Pirates refused to follow the rest of the league and piled up 19 assorted hits to trim the Cardinals 14 to 4.

Pat Malone, Cubs—Limited Reds to five hits and fanned six.

Joe Vosmik, Indians—Clouted homer with one on in eighth to beat Browns, 3-2.

Freddie Lindstrom, Pirates—Hit triple, two doubles and single in rout of Cardinals.

Carl Reynolds and Johnny Welch, Red Sox—Former made five hits, in double victory over Senators; latter pitched five hit ball in second game.

Walter Beck, Dodgers—Held Braves to three singles in seven inning tie.

Zeke Bonura, White Sox—Made three hits and scored winning run in 3 to 2 triumph over Tigers.

Bud Parmelee, Giants—Shut out Phillies with three hits in 7-1-3 innings, fanning five.

Bill Dickey, Yankees—Batted in three runs with homer and single against Athletics.

Kingston High Opens DUSO Drive Here

Saturday afternoon at the Fair Grounds the Kingston High School baseball team will open its DUSO drive for 1934 when it will oppose Ellenville High.

The locals are the favorites in this game as they have been in almost every other encounter with the Ulster village boys in the past. It is hoped by many of Kingston's followers that this game will also start Kingston off on its third DUSO conquest this year, a feat never accomplished by any school in the DUSO League. Kingston has already won the football and basketball titles. If well wishes and the hopes of the rooters could be turned into runs, the DUSO championship would be all settled in favor of Kingston.

Although Coach Kias has not announced his starting lineup, it is presumed that Captain Jim Martin, ace of the flinging squad, will start in the box, with George Zadany behind the plate. The infield will probably consist of Jack Linden at first, either Johnny Murphy or Charley Rock at second, either DeCicco or Birdie Dubrosky at third and Don Moore at short while the outfield positions will probably be filled by Mac Tiano, Elmer Hopper and either Harder or Ortale.

U. S. Amateurs Meet For European Trip

New York, April 20 (AP).—Nine leading amateur golfers of the nation, including the U. S. open and amateur champions, gathered in New York today preparatory to starting an ocean voyage which ultimately will lead to St. Andrews in Scotland for the international Walker Cup team matches with Great Britain on May 11 and 12. The team sails tomorrow at noon on the Caledonia.

Francis Ouimet, the team captain, came down from Boston; Chandler Egan, the 50-year-old marvel, arrived from the Pacific coast; Gus Moreland came up from Texas. They were joined by George T. Dunlap, Jr. and Johnny Goodman, amateur and open kings, respectively, Jack Westland of Chicago, Johnny Fletcher of Cincinnati, Max Marston of Philadelphia and Lawson Little of San Francisco.

With The Walker Cuppers — Westland

Chicagoan To "Come Back" To St. Andrews As He Promised in '29.

Editor's note: This is the second of a series of articles on the careers and personalities of the eight members of America's 1934 Walker Cup golf team.

By PAUL MICKELSON
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

Chicago, April 20.—A young American captured hopelessly at the starter's feet at historic St. Andrews five years ago, his entry in the British amateur golf championship refused, "Well, I'll be back," he promised the starting officials as he strode away, dejected and weary.

And back to the ancient battle-ground of golf the same fellow is coming this May, not as a comparative unknown but as Jack Westland, 500 a star member of America's 1934 Walker Cup team.

If the American team needs an added incentive this year in the big cup battle at St. Andrews, Westland will supply it. Since that day in 1929 when the British tournament officials advised him his entry had been received 12 hours too late, Jack has been burning with an intense desire to play in the Walker Cup matches and the British championships.

The Inspiration He Needed
There is no fancier in his heart against the British, as he believes in golf rules, but he cannot forget that time when he made an ocean voyage over there only to be shut out by a late entry.

That incident probably did as much as anything to make a golf champion out of Westland. From St. Andrews he went over to win the French amateur title against a good field, which included his traveling mate, Johnny Dawson, who had gone to the semi-finals of the British amateur that same year.

Since then Westland has been Western amateur champion, finalist in the American national amateur in 1931 and Chicago's front ranking golfer—in fact, so superior to his Chicago field that he was this year given the unprecedented ranking of "plus one."

JACK WESTLAND

Westland probably golf's most famous "plus one" claims the distinction of being one of the few amateur stars of today who did not learn the game from a professional. His father, a Canadian now residing at Everett, Wash., taught Jack.

Popular Putting Stance
A 70 shooter himself, the elder Westland took his son out golfing at the age of 12 and he had him breaking 80 before he was 17 years old. Today Jack is 25, tall, straight, equipped with muscles of steel and one of the best fighting hearts in the game.

Westland can play a par tune with his woods and short irons, but his finest work is done with an old rusty putter he has kept in his bag for 15 years and one of the most peculiar putting stances in golf.

When he puts, Jack cocks his head around so far that only his left eye glimpses the ball, giving one the impression that he is about to putt away from the hole. How he can putt so brilliantly with such an aim is a mystery to golf.

Office Pals Make It Tough.
Jack, who played on the University of Washington links team in his college days and won the Pacific coast collegiate title in addition to placing in the finals of the national collegiate, also rates as the most silent of players. During a match he seldom talks or smiles.

Right now he can't talk much anyway. In the same brokerage office with him in Chicago are two former national amateur champions and Walker Cup players, Chick Evans and Bob Gardner. Each has played on three victorious cup teams, and they vow they'll run Jack out of the office if he and his mates lose this year.

"So how can I talk?" Westland wants to know.

SPORT SLANTS

By ALAN J. GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor.)

The Cambridge University rugby fifteen has come and gone, completing a somewhat breathless and high-pressure invasion of eastern college fields within a fortnight.

Although the ensuing spectacle proved a bit one-sided, in favor of the visiting lads, it was interesting and stimulating, even though I doubt there will be any immediate public or private demand to lift rugby to the level of big-time college athletics. No doubt some more of those international athletic friendships were cemented and all that sort of thing but I am still a trifle puzzled by the terrific ballhoo for the rugby boys. Particularly as it involves the oldest and most conservative institutions of learning on either side of the Atlantic.

Harvard, for instance, sent its rugby team to New York—the big commercial city—to play Cambridge in the opening game of the tour. But can you imagine the howl from Boston if it was suggested the Harvard football team play an American rival—West Point, for example—on the neutral ground of the Yankee Stadium? It simply couldn't be done.

It's all right for rugby, of course, because rugby doesn't attract very big crowds, anyway, and this was an affair of international consequences, hence sport for sport's sake. But it would seem to be unethical for Harvard and Army to play in New York once every four years, instead of West Point, so that three times as many people could pay to see the game in some comfort. Or is this amateurism and are we wrong?

The Thing For Spring?
An optimist, Dr. Marvin A. (Mal) Stevens, New York University's new head baseball coach, sees rugby as the coming spring game.

The good doctor's remarks, of course, may have been made in the general spirit of enthusiasm which seemed to mark the visit of our British lads but he continued:

"It is the type of game the fans can like and the teams will enjoy playing. It will take some time to develop the interest of teams and players, but it won't be long before rugby attracts as much attention in the spring as football in the fall."

A nice, hectic spring season of college sports is all we need, doctor, to give to do with his spare time. What with spring football drill, baseball, track, lacrosse and rowing, John College Student and his pals hardly have enough to keep them busy now.

Besides, professional baseball is embarrassed enough now by the conflict of college football with its fall activities, including the world series, without having rugby boomed as a spring rival for gate receipts.

A Bright Spot.
All this chatter is at least a sign of better times. The fact that innovations are being tried in college athletics and old rivalries resumed is a contrast with the rush to curtail intercollegiate sports a year ago. Economy is still the watchword but the progress of events so far in 1934 indicates the colleges have regained confidence and enthusiasm.

In the scheme of things but your real college athlete wants his activities on an intercollegiate basis and seems determined to have them, no matter whether he rides and from the scene by bus or de luxe train.

Marathon Dance Is Old In Venezuelan Jungles

In the Venezuelan jungles near the lonely Brazilian border the cock-of-the-rock, sometimes called "the most beautiful bird in the world," goes through a remarkable dance routine. The performance takes place on the ground witnessed by a score or more of other flame colored males and their drab consorts, gathered on bushes.

While the audience cheers approvingly, the dancer, with lowered wings and outspread pumping tail, walks round and round, scratching the ground and springing into the air. When it tires another male takes its place. There seems to be no data as to the duration of these marathons, according to the National Geographical society.

Other dancers even more accomplished, are the manakins. There is one with jet-black coat and bright blue cap; another, of the same diminutive size, exactly like him except that the blue cap is replaced by one of white; and a third of the same stature, with orange head and red boots.

All are denizens of the deep shadows of the undergrowth, and in the dusk might well be mistaken for little black-coated gnomes, as they go so seriously about their intricate dances.

Opt of the Hebrides
On Uist and other islands of the Hebrides there grows a special oat called the "small oat." Flatlanders know it as Avena strigosa and it is the only oat that can be grown in these islands. The Hebridean islands are situated off the northwest coast of Scotland where farming conditions are not so favorable. The small oat is also grown in Wales. It was very common on most farms in Scotland prior to 1790, when newer varieties of oats were introduced. The small oat has a higher feeding value than the cultivated varieties. The analysis shows it to be higher in protein, oil and ash, and lower in carbohydrates and fiber than ordinary oats. The small oat is an important crop in these islands and in parts of Scotland and Wales where it is also used to feed in sheaves to stock, and is entirely depended on for fodder.

Harriet Little Worry
Four races of the yellow-bellied marmoset are widely distributed in the rugged western half of Colombia, says Nature Magazine, but their selected habitat is far removed from nearly all agricultural activity, and they are of little concern to the farmer.

Plymouth Had Blue Love
Records of the ancient American town of Plymouth, Mass., show that in Puritan days it was illegal to smoke on Sundays within two miles of a meeting house, or while going to or from meeting house services. The penalty was a 12 pence fine per puff.

Lost—One Collar Button

By BOYCE COLLINGS
© 1934 McClure Newspaper Syndicate, Inc.

ROBERT WEBER was dressing to go out for the evening. Whether he would go to a first night at the theater or to one of the popular hotels where he could dine and dance the evening away, he hadn't decided.

"D-d-d!" he exclaimed suddenly when his collar button eluded him in the traditional manner just as he was carefully fastening on his collar. Robert spread the evening newspaper painstakingly on the floor and started his search for the missing button. Under the radiator he found some burnt matches and nothing else. After further research he found a square opening around the base of the steam pipe where it entered the room. This half-inch space was exactly where a lost collar button might be hiding, Robert decided.

And there was something gleaming in the shallow hole. Robert fished around with a knife blade. He brought the gleaming object to the surface and carefully carried it to the bureau. "It'll be d-d-d!" Robert uttered aloud. But it wasn't his missing collar button that he had found.

Instead it was a diamond ring that Robert had unearthed from a dusty setting. It was a woman's ring. "Someone has been missing this, I'll bet. Now for the collar button and I'll be satisfied," murmured Robert as he went back to his excavating. But before he had stooped to a squatting position his foot hit something. He turned around and there was the collar button smashed flat.

Robert didn't mind altering his plans. He put a business suit on instead of his tuxedo.

He knocked at the landlady's door before he left the house.

"I was just wondering, Mrs. Turnbull, who lived in my room before I moved in," said Robert. "I found a book there—" he had a book under his arm, a modern novel.

"Oh, that Miss Blossom must have left it—I don't believe she wanted it. She was always losing things—she lost her diamond ring right there in the room the very day she moved out."

"I suppose she left her new address," ventured Robert.

"Well, yes, she did. She couldn't afford to pay the rent here so she got a cheaper room with a Miss King on Amsterdam avenue."

With this information, Robert decided to dine by himself. After a sumptuous meal he proceeded to the new home of Miss Blossom.

"Miss Blossom, yes, sir. She lives here. Here's a gentleman to see you, Miss Blossom," the maid said and led him to a small living room where someone was playing the piano. The playing stopped. A woman arose and said to Robert, "I'm Miss Blossom."

Robert was surprised to find the woman facing him somewhere around forty years old and not particularly pleasant to look at.

"I came to inquire about a diamond ring that you had lost."

"I never talk to reporters," snapped Miss Blossom. "And besides I found my diamond ring in my trunk when I unpacked here."

"Well, do you happen to know who occupied the room before you took it? I found a diamond ring there last night and I'm anxious to return it to the owner."

"A Miss Towers had the room—Miss Elsie Towers—and she works in the Uptown Savings bank."

The Uptown Savings bank—his own place of employment! And Miss Towers was secretary to the president! Robert decided to forego pleasure and return to his room for a good night's sleep. The next morning the alarm clock awakened him an hour earlier than usual. Robert jumped out of bed and spent the extra time making sure that he would look his best at the bank that day. In hopes that Miss Elsie Towers breakfasted at Mrs. Turnbull's, he was in the dining room by seven-thirty. Half an hour later in came the one girl he was looking for, and she appeared more beautiful than Robert had ever seen her.

As soon as he finished his breakfast he mustered up courage and joined Miss Towers at her table. He asked her tactfully if she had lost a ring. She was surprised and said that she had—a diamond ring that her father had sent her for Christmas last year. She didn't know what could have happened to it. It had vanished and she had been greatly upset about it.

That was Robert's chance and he took advantage of it.

Mrs. Turnbull from the cashier's desk noticed the pair intent in conversation. She didn't miss anything. "These young folks beat Old Harry," she told a friend later. "Strangers one day and engaged the next. He giving her a ring or soon?"

So the elderly matron wasn't surprised a few months later when Elsie displayed a large solitaire diamond set in platinum and she dined at the boarding house with Robert Weber. But she was curious about something that Robert took from his pocket and showed to Elsie. What was it that made them laugh and then suddenly appear so devoted to each other? If Mrs. Turnbull's eyesight had been a little better she would have noticed that the minute object which Robert took such good care of was a flattened collar button—the one thing that had been responsible for his romance with Elsie Towers.

Cattle Woman Is Director of Bank

Corinne Lasater

Pauls Valley, Okla. (AP)—Corinne Lasater, the first woman ever named to a federal land bank's board of directors, came to her job with a background of practical farm experience.

She is the daughter of the late Milas Lasater, a cattleman well known through the southwest and former president of the Federal Land Bank of Wichita, the institution his daughter now serves as a director.

Miss Lasater took over the management of the family stock farms at Pauls Valley after her father's death. A graduate of Cornell university, she had been active in farm credit work in the Wichita area, comprising Colorado, Oklahoma, New Mexico and Kansas.

Soldier Bonus Demands Traced to Indian Wars

The bonus for former warriors is as old as the Indian wars of the early settlers, according to an authority, who reviews the fight between the English settlers in Connecticut with the Pequots, which occurred in 1637.

The Pequots, most feared tribe in Connecticut, had subjugated the other Indians and the determination of the white settlers on a war, though they were inexperienced in Indian fighting, was a "remarkable action to take," the writer says.

The General court decided on the war at Hartford, May 1, 1637, and by July 18, the same year, the Indian power had been broken. The white men struck quickly, killing men, women and children as they drove the Indians from the state. Then came the aftermath, just as it has in modern days.

The Indian fighters demanded bonuses, and were given lands in the former country of the Pequots, now New London county. Taxes were increased and increased interest in preparation for other wars was noted. The leaders then fighting wrote their memoirs, and alterations arose as to who won the war.

First Iron Ship

The earliest use of iron in shipbuilding, either for the frame or sheathing, was in 1816 when Thomas Wilson, a Scotch boatbuilder, began the construction of the Vulcan in Lankashire, Scotland. It maintained a passenger service for over half a century and was the pioneer of the iron and steel merchant marine. The first iron ship in this country was the John Randolph, riveted together at Savannah in 1834 of plates shipped from England. The old gubboat Wolverine, formerly the Michigan, was launched in 1845 and is the oldest iron-hulled ship afloat in the world. The Great Eastern, used as a cable-laying ship, was of iron.

A King Was Cold

The judge's crime and the mayor's fur collar are relics of the times when the temperatures of law courts and banqueting halls in England made them not an ornament but a necessity. Even at coronations it was hopeless to try to warm the king, so the king and his august subjects were warmed instead, and modern sovereigns have cause to remember how chilly their ancestors felt when they in turn sat on the same heavy fur robes. So cold were the homes of England that those who could afford it even slept in furs, and an old account book mentions the purchase of 17 skins to make a nightgown for Queen Elizabeth.

River's Phenomenal Leap

In British Guiana there is a mighty river called the Petara. At one place, however, the river makes a clear drop of 822 feet, and at the foot of the cataract the waters of the Petara branch off in various directions. The cataract is the show place of British Guiana. Twenty-eight thousand cubic feet of water pass over the edge of the cataract every second. This vast volume of water, properly applied, would be capable of furnishing four times as much power as is derived today by the harnessing of Niagara falls.

Corn Fritters
For a tasty addition to your menu, try this recipe:
1 No. 2 can corn or 6 raw ears of corn
2 eggs
1/4 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons milk
2 tablespoons flour
Grease the ears of the corn or strain the canned corn. To the pulp add the egg yolks previously beaten, then the flour, salt and milk. Fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites and drop by teaspoonfuls in deep, hot fat and fry until nicely brown. Serve with hot syrup.

WHEN YOU WAKE UP DRINK GLASS OF HOT WATER
Wash the poisons and toxins from system before putting more food into stomach.
Says inside-bathing makes anyone look and feel clean, sweet and refreshed.
Wash yourself on the inside before breakfast like you do on the outside. This is vastly more important because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing illness, while the bowel pores do.
For every ounce of food and drink taken into the stomach, nearly an ounce of waste material must be carried out of the body. If this waste material is not eliminated day by day it quickly ferments and generates poisons, gases and toxins which are absorbed or sucked into the blood stream, through the lymph ducts which should suck only nourishment to sustain the body.
A splendid health measure is to drink, before breakfast each day, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, which is a harmless way to wash these poisons, gases and toxins from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels; thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.
A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs but very little at the drug store but is sufficient to make anyone an enthusiast on inside-bathing. Men and women who are accustomed to wake up with a dull, aching head or have forced tongue, bad taste, nasty breath, yellow complexion, others who have bilious attacks, acid stomach or constipation are assured of pronounced improvement in both health and appearance shortly.—Adv.
